

Teaching type	Credit hours(3)	Building Regulations and Professional Practice	course number
Blended	pre-requisite 703332
This course is concerned with studying the different aspects of practicing the profession of architecture and focusing on the engineering, syndicate, legal and administrative aspects and organizing the architect's relationship with the various individuals and institutions involved in the construction process. In addition to the duties and responsibilities of an architect. It provides an analysis of various aspects of the relationship between the designer, contractor and customer. Emphasis is placed on the principles and ethics of the profession and the importance of teamwork and the role of individual creativity in developing the profession. The course also presents the architectural aspects in terms of requirements for the supply and demand market for building legislation. Studying laws, legislation, and building provisions in Jordanian cities and villages and the impact of their application on architectural design, with a focus on the relevant environmental, social and economic data.			