

Teaching type	Credit hours(3)	Advanced urban studies	course number
Blended	pre-requisite 703454		703540
Study the factors on which the urban studies process is based. The city development and its components as an organic unit with interconnected members and integrated functions, and study approaches and methods of urban design and planning to reorganize the old areas and provide them with social and basic services. Presenting housing theories in terms of design and planning, focusing on social, cultural, behavioral and environmental theories for all segments of society, presenting local and international case studies, and activating the local field survey to deepen the concept of urban content analysis.			