

Teaching type	Credit hours(3)	Environmental Control	course number
face-to-face	pre-requisite 0703373		703571
A study of renewable energy sources (sun, wind, etc.) and their utilization in architectural design at the levels of architecture and the environment and coordinate sites and urban planning. The course covers the display models of architectural designs that rely on natural sources of energy and natural architecture processors systems to control the building environment (temperature, humidity, ventilation, lighting, etc.).			