

Overview of the Smart Devices Application Development Program:

The program focuses on preparing students to acquire advanced skills in designing and developing innovative applications for smart devices. It emphasizes programming, requirements analysis, and application quality assurance in line with the needs of the labor market.